

HOME HINTS AND HELPS.

—It is said that if a shirt bosom, or any other article which has been scorched in ironing, is laid where the bright sunlight will fall directly upon it the discoloration will be completely removed.

—Creamed Potatoes: Boil, mash, season with salt, pepper and butter. Make quite moist with cream; beat in the whipped white of an egg; mound in a pie plate and set in the open oven five minutes before serving.

—Breaded Chops: Trim and dip, first in crumbs, then in beaten egg, then in crumbs again, and fry in smoking hot fat about eight minutes if liked well done. You might mix some chopped parsley if liked.—Christian Inquirer.

—Chicken Toast: Mince cold chicken fine; mix with it a pint of cream or rich milk, the yolks of two eggs and season well with celery salt. Let it simmer over several slices of nice toast that have been well buttered. Serve at once.—Boston Budget.

—Squash Cookies: Take equal parts squash, sour milk and lard, a very little sugar, salt and soda, according to the quantity made. Mix into a firm dough; roll very thin; bake till brittle, with medium heat, as they scorch easily.—Farm and Home.

—Spanish Puffs: Put into a saucepan half a pint of water and a quarter of a pound of butter; stir till it boils, and mix in five tablespoonfuls of flour; stir till it well together, and add six yolks and four whites of eggs, two at a time; let it cool, and with a dessert spoon drop it into boiling clarified dripping or lard. To make ginger puffs, a teaspoonful of pounded ginger may be added.—Boston Herald.

—A new kind of patchwork for the little ones which is typical of the "age we live in" when contrasted with the neatly joined bits that our grandmothers taught their children to overhand together, is nevertheless very effective, and pretty. Small pieces of colored calico are tacked either in rag-quilt fashion, or in a pattern on a muslin foundation, and the joinings are hidden by working the ordinary crewel stitch over them with coarse white or red working cotton.—N. Y. Tribune.

—Cauliflower Salad: Boil a cauliflower in salted water till tender, but not overdone; when cold cut it up neatly in small pieces. Boil up together three tablespoonfuls of oil and one teaspoonful of tarragon vinegar, with pepper and salt to taste. Rub the salad dish lightly with an onion, arrange the pieces of cauliflower on it, strew over them some capers, a little tarragon and parsley, all finely mixed, and the least bit of dried thyme and marjoram. Pour the oil and vinegar over just before it is required.—Housekeeper.

—Boiled Chicken: Take one or two neat joints from a tender young bird which has been carefully plucked and drawn; wrap them in white paper, liberally buttered, and put them in a saucepan with sufficient boiling water to barely cover them. Add a few small pieces of celery and a pinch of salt, and simmer very gently for twenty minutes (or five minutes longer if the joints are rather large), but watch carefully that the liquid never reaches boiling point after the chicken is put in. When done enough, remove the paper, season the meat slightly, and serve it on a nice hot dish with a little well-made bread sauce poured over and accompanied by a small quantity of some carefully prepared vegetable, if the latter is suited to the condition of the patient.—Prairie Farmer.

A GOOD PLAN.

Devote an Hour Every Saturday to Making Out the Week's Menu.

Let those who complain of the trouble of house-keeping and of the daily difficulty of what to order for the next day's dinner—to say nothing of breakfast and luncheon—try the very simple plan of devoting an hour every Saturday to the making out of a week's menu, writing down at the same time the daily order for the butcher. This method will save no end of trouble and thought, and will also insure to the family a greater variety of food; in this way, too, individual tastes may be gratified and little luxuries introduced, and a much better table maintained at a less cost than when, fretted and hurried, the house-mistress has only a few minutes to spare for her cook, the result being almost always the ordering of a few staple dishes over and over. Some time ago there was published an excellent little book, wherein the author tried to carry out this idea and to supply a daily menu for every day in the year; but on account of the various habits of living and the greater or less number of people in different families it is impossible to do this theoretically. Only the person who keeps house herself has the requisite knowledge to make out such a list satisfactorily.—N. Y. Tribune.

Diet for Children.

A mother asks what is the best diet for a child having bowel difficulty, who has been fed in the usual way for two or three years, and receives the following sensible suggestion: The best diet for young children is fruits and grains, with a moderate allowance of milk. A young child needs bread and milk with good fruits, such as baked sweet apples, strawberries, stewed prunes, peaches and grapes. These fruits can be eaten by a child with perfect impunity, and are indeed the best food for anyone whose digestion is not very strong.—Good Health.

ST. LOUIS EXPOSITION.

All Arrangements Complete for the Grand Opening on Wednesday.

Gilmore's Band to Open the Exposition and Give Four Concerts Daily—Continued Success of the Street Illuminations—Excursions Daily.

St. Louis, Sept. 1, 1892.—The grand street illuminations were repeated to-night, and the throngs on the streets were larger than ever. The electrical panorama proved a perfect success, all necessary power being now available, and the street arches and clusters were regarded generally as brilliant beyond description. Visitors are arriving daily from all sections, and an unusually large number of European tourists are making St. Louis their objective point. Excursions are being run from a large number of cities, and everything points to sustained interest in the carnival right through the entire forty days of the festivities. The city will be illuminated again on Saturday evening, and also on Monday, the other dates announced including September 15, 29 and 29, and October 1, 4, 6, 13 and 20.

P. S. Gilmore.

The exhibits which form the feature of the ninth annual exposition are now in perfect order for the opening next Wednesday, when Gilmore's band with 100 pieces will give a grand concert, which will be attended not only by thousands of visitors, but also by the governors of Missouri and other states, each accompanied by a large suite. As Gilmore's New York engagement does not terminate until Tuesday morning, it has been necessary to charter a special train to bring him here in time for the opening on the evening of September 7. The train will bring the largest as well as the finest band ever heard in the west, and it is safe to say that the playing of one hundred skilled musicians under the leadership of the greatest band master of the day will afford a musical treat such as has never been attempted heretofore in the west.

The general attractions of the Exposition will be more numerous and generally speaking much grander than in the past. In each of the eight successful seasons of the St. Louis Exposition, new features have been introduced, but the number of novelties this year is much greater than usual and an immense increase in attendance is anticipated. The art display is a very grand one, and the electrical and mechanical departments also promise unexcelled attractions. The management announces that an inclusive fee of 25 cents will admit to all parts of the exposition, including the great Gilmore concerts.

—The Waiter in a Fog.—"The practice of smoking is so prevalent in Holland," once remarked a traveler, "that when you are in the alehouse where everybody smokes, you can not possibly recognize the person sitting next to you." Then how does the waiter manage to distinguish the customers? "Oh! easily enough. He always carries a pair of bellows about with him to blow away the smoke until he discovers the person who summoned him."—Le Rire de l'Univers.

—Winifred's grandmamma had tried to explain to her about the letters that were vowels, and had told her that each word must have one or more of them in it. Later, the young lady wished to inform her papa upon the important subject. To such women, to every woman who is tired or afflicted, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription safely and certainly brings back health and strength. It's a legitimate medicine that corrects and cures; a tonic that invigorates and builds up; a nerve that soothes and strengthens.
